- 802-W2 ZIP / 802S-W2
World Coverage, 2000' Runways

Effective Dates

Cycle 2007, effective 18 June 2020

Cycle 2013, effective 3 December 2020

Description

The volume of electronic navigation data continues to grow at an exponential rate. In order to stay within Flight Management System (FMS) memory limits, the following navigation database coverage changes will be made.

Effective with Cycle 2013, 3 December 2020, database part number 802-W2 ZIP / 802S-W2 will no longer be available.

Effective with Cycle 2007, 18 June 2020, two new database part numbers will be available.

The following database part numbers are alternatives to ensure continued database support of airports with runways 2000 ft. and greater for operators affected by this change:

- 802-A2 ZIP, 802S-A2 World without Pacific, South America and South Pacific
Includes: Africa, Canada, Europe, Eastern Europe, Latin America, Middle East and USA
- 802-B2 ZIP, 802S-B2 World without Eastern Europe and Middle East
Includes: Africa, Canada, Europe, Latin America, Pacific, South America, South Pacific and USA

See map on reverse for coverage areas.

Actions to Take Now

Option 1: Take no action

Effective with Cycle 2013, your subscription will be changed to database part number 802-W4 ZIP / 802S-W4, which includes worldwide coverage for airports with runways 4000 ft. and greater. This change is at no additional cost.

Option 2: Select one of the new regional databases

If you wish to change to either of the new database part numbers, the corresponding subscription rate will increase by $1000 (USD) effective on your next renewal. If you determine that your operations require both new database part numbers, the corresponding subscription rate will increase by $1600 (USD) effective on your next renewal.

UA recognizes the impact this change may have on flight operations. In response, UA will contact database subscribers affected by this change and work with each to create a cost-effective path that is optimal to extending the service and versatility of the aircraft.

Contact

If you would like to change to either of the new database part numbers, please contact Universal Avionics Sales Administration.
